WHO

Foreword

This volume is due to the patronage and co-operation of the men listed in its pages, men who do not believe that all life is selfish; men who believe that the record of the present is an inspiration to the future, and that the courtesy of a record of the period is due, not only to the people among whom we live, but to the time we live in.

The history of the city is the sum of the history of the individual man.

The oldest man recorded in the book is Mr. James Dobson, who, after a long life of usefulness and good works, has just passed away at the age of ninety years. The youngest had just turned his twenty-first birthday. Achievement is not wholly a matter of years.

An attentive reading of the life sketches in this volume, discloses many extraordinary examples of industry, and achievement in the face of great odds. Some of them show a rise from humble beginnings and inauspicious environment, by patient, determined and continued effort; even as did great Lincoln, who said that every man should be proud to live so that his city would be proud to have him. Some of the men listed in it rose from a splitter of rails and a one room log cabin. Their sketches are full of valuable suggestions to the thoughtful mind and inspirations of profit to the youth of the city.

Its pages mirror the city life of Philadelphia in its institutions, the amusements, the clubs, the [illegible] and societies with which these men are identified.

The demonstrated usefulness of "Who's Who in Philadelphia" extends to practically all classes of men and institutions, and the information in this book makes it a practical necessity for every person who is sufficiently liberal to take an interest in the people who make the town he lives in. The best educational authorities recognize the value of high ideals, as exemplified in the lives of successful men, as shaping the aspirations of the young. It is a work of reference for the librarian, the scholar, and the newspaper man.

A future volume will record those, who, because of absence from the city or the inability of the publishers to reach them in time, are omitted in this book.

The work of compiling this volume covered a long period of time and involved the labor of more than two score people. More than fifteen hundred separate engravings, many tons of white paper, and fifteen hundred photographs were necessary in its preparation and publication.

The likenesses are reproductions from many of the leading studios of the city, including Marceau, Pott, Phillips, Goldensky, Bachrach and Dooner.

WILLIAM POTTER (Deceased)

In 1892 he was appointed Ambassador to Italy, serving for two years, when he resigned. On his return to the United States he was made an honorary member of the Society of the Cincinnati in the State of New Jersey for his patriotic services to his country during his official residence in Rome. This covered the period of the settlement of the New Orleans massacre controversy, which for the time being interrupted diplomatic relations between the two countries. In 1897 he declined McKinley's tender of the Berlin Embassy, and at a later time refused appointment to St. Petersburg, though he has continued to take a deep interest in international affairs and has frequently acted as host to visiting royalty at his Chestnut Hill home. In 1902 he met in Egypt the present King of Siam, who then, as Crown Prince, had just finished his ten years of English education at Harrow and Oxford, and was returning to Siam, via the United States. The position of Advisor to the Siamese Foreign Office, then vacant and which had always been filled by a European, was offered to Mr. Potter through the acquaintanceship which was established, but was reluctantly declined by him. He was able, however, to secure the appointment for the late Professor Strobel, then occupying the chair of International Law at Harvard, and this important post has since been filled by an American. In 1892 he was elected a trustee of Jefferson Medical College and Hospital, becoming President of the Board in 1896 and being mainly instrumental in its latest development and expansion and though a layman, an authority on medical education. As a member of the Board of City Trusts, he has long been concerned in the management of Girard College, being Chairman of the Household Committee and a member of the Committee on Instruction. He is also a manager for the Pennsylvania Institute for the Deaf and Dumb and a member of the Citizens' Permanent Relief Committee. Active in reforming municipal politics, he was a member of the Committee of One Hundred and Chairman of the Advisory Board which counselled Mayor Weaver against the terms of the gas lease in 1905. Two years later he became the Fusion nominee for Mayor, receiving 98,000 votes to 136,000 for Reyburn. During the World War, President Wilson made him Fuel Administrator for Pennsylvania. In 1916 he was overwhelmingly elected a delegate from his home Congressional District to the Republican National Convention in Chicago, this being his last active political connection. In 1919 the University of Pennsylvania bestowed upon him the degree of Bachelor of Arts, which he had not had time to win in his youth, and two years later Washington and Jefferson College made him a Doctor of Laws. In January, 1924, on the nomination of the Department of Justice, Judge Hand, of the U. S. Court, in the Southern District of New York, named him a trustee in the segregation of the Lehigh Coal Sales Company from the Lehigh Valley Railroad. He is a Councillor of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania and bears decorations bestowed by Kings Umberto and Victor Emmanuel of Italy.

and other stock in a large way. He settled in Roadstown in 1862 and they were the parents of ten children. He and his wife were members of the Cohansey Baptist Church, at Roadstown, for many years, Mr. Hires serving as deacon. His death occurred January, 1878, his wife passed away January, 1880. Charles Elmer Hires, son of the late John D. and Mary Hires, was born near Salem, Salem County, New Jersey, August 19, 1851. His early education was acquired in the schools of New Jersey and at the age of twelve, he was apprenticed in a druggist establishment in Cumberland County, New Jersey. After serving the four years' apprenticeship he came to Philadelphia. Two years later established a retail drug business which he continued for seven years. Then he founded a Wholesale Botanical Drug House, on Market Street, where in 1877 he commenced the manufacture of root beer of a superior quality, which has since become famous all over the world. In addition to this business, Mr. Hires became interested in 1899 in the manufacture of condensed milk. In 1900 he erected in Chester County, Pa., a quarter-million-dollar plant. His novel method of advertising his products has made the name "Hires" known internationally. The headquarters for his enterprises are in Philadelphia. He has served on a number of Boards of Directors of various institutions. In addition to being President of the Charles E. Hires Company and The Hires Condensed Milk Company, he was President and Director of the following: Ithaca Condensed Milk Company of New York, Maple Leaf Condensed Milk Company of Canada, Odessa Milk Company of Michigan, Page Milk Company of Michigan, Hudson Condensed Milk Company of New York, Federal Packing Company of Vermont and a half score of other milk companies. He was President of The Philadelphia Drug Exchange for a time, of which he is a Director and has been for a number of years, besides serving as Director of the Old Merchants' National Bank. He belongs to the Society of Friends. Among his clubs are: Manufacturers' Club, Merion Cricket Club, Art Alliance, City Club, and numerous other Member of the advisory boards of the Presbyterian Home for Widows and Single Women and the Presbyterian Home for Aged Couples and Single Men. Member of Union League and City Club of Philadelphia, of which he was President for several years. In 1916, the year before this country entered into the World War, a small camp was established at Lansdowne for preparedness with Mr. Nicholson as President and had an enrollment of 12,000 men. A number of companies were formed in the various banks, trust companies and other large corporations and uniformed by them. Some 40,000 men were drilled at Lansdowne and in Philadelphia and vicinity. Of the number more than 24,000 entered the Government service when most needed, namely, during the few weeks directly after war was declared and before the draft was instituted. During the draft period Mr. Nicholson was Chairman of the Overbrook Board and the Philadelphia Military Training Corps who gave military instructions to a large number of the men when called to Camp Meade and other camps to secure appointments at once as corporals and sergeants by reason of their military knowledge. The Land Title and Trust Company has the proud distinction of having more men in the service of this country during the war than any other bank or trust company in Pennsylvania. Residence, 2415 Bryn Mawr Avenue, Philadelphia, Pa. Business address, Land Title and Trust Building, Philadelphia, Pa.

ing this time he was connected with some twenty various corporations as officer or director, in furtherance of the policy of the house as to representation on the boards of management of those companies in which its clientele was largely interested or in which it took a leading part in financing. These corporations included American Railways Company, American Gas Company, Delaware Insurance Company, Easton Consolidated Electric Company, Merchants Union Trust Company and National Gas Company. During this time he was also President of the Delaware Insurance Company and Merchants Union Trust Company, which latter corporation was merged in 1923 into Integrity Trust Company, of which company Mr. Bioren is now a director and member of the Finance Committee. He is Financial Vice-President of the Art Alliance of Philadelphia, a trustee of the Southern Home for Destitute Children, a member of the vestry of th Protestant Episcopal Washington Memorial Chapel, at Valley Forge, and a member of the Finance Committee of the City Club, of Philadelphia, Pa., as well as of the two other corporations above named. He is a member of the Racquet Club, City Club, Radnor Hunt Club, Merion Cricket Club, Riverton Country Club, Art Alliance, Historical Society of Pennsylvania, Genealogical Society of Pennsylvania, The American Academy of Political and Social Science, The Academy of Natural Sciences, and other organizations. Elected a member of the Philadelphia Stock Exchange in 1888, he is still connected therewith, and served for seven years on its Governing Committee and on its subcommittees of Finance and Arbitration, having been chairman of the latter committee. Mr. Bioren retired from active business in 1923, when he disposed of a large interest in the Merchants' Union Trust Company at the time of the merger of that institution, but his activities continue along many varied lines. During the first fifty years of his life he resided for most of the year at Riverton, N. J., and was there identified part of the site now occupied by the Jayne Building, and thereafter published exclusively under his own name for some thirty years. One of the earliest publications, 1794, was the first American edition of "The Plays and Poems of William Shakespeare," corrected from the latest and best London editions. The frontispiece was engraved by R. Field, from the portrait in the collection of the Duke of Chandos. The work, in eight volumes, was sold by subscription and is much sought after by libraries and collectors in this country and Europe. During the many years that he was in business the publications were extensive and varied, including many volumes of the Laws of the United States and Laws of Pennsylvania; also Bibles, Prayer Books of the Protestant Episcopal Church, Journals of its conventions, historical, medical and miscellaneous books, Bioren's Town and Country Almanack, etc. Mr. Bioren was Democratic in politics, but evidently appreciated the greatness of General Washington, for he published a most laudatory biography immediately after his death. He married Hannah, a daughter of Captain Richard Barker, of Hudson, N. Y. In later years Mr. Bioren bought land and commenced building in Black Log Valley with a view of inducing Swedish colonization, but this attempt was soon abandoned. He died at his home, 343 Spruce Street, above Eleventh, August 22, 1835, and was buried at Gloria Dei Church.

When this company merged with the Hill Publishing Company, he resigned to go abroad for the Vacuum Oil Company, but the World War called him into service as an officer in the Construction Division of the Army, and Mr. Hays was placed in charge of electrical and other construction and executive work on several projects. After his discharge he decided that Philadelphia presented best opportunities to resume civilian life work so he started in management consulting work here personally, and associated with Dudley R. Kennedy in 1919, and 1920. With William B. Ferguson and D. Knickerbocker Boyd, Mr. Hays assisted in the survey leading to the report on the elimination of waste in the building industry, which has been published by the Federated Engineering Societies. Mr. Hays founded the National Slate Association in 1922, after serving for two years as Secretary of the National Federa-

Mr. Hays is an author of many articles for leading trade papers pertaining to industrial management, advertising, construction and engineering. Has been actively identified with the progress of the Sesqui-Centennial and delivered many lectures throughout the country. Mr. Hays is recognized internationally as an authority on advertising, construction and merchandising matters and association activities and management. It is such men as this versatile and energetic Yale man with dominant mid-western business training, who are aiding Philadelphia to maintain and add to its prestige as the birthplace of national liberty, integrity and progress. It is only logical that business enterprises everywhere turn to this city and its citizenry for leadership in various activities where ability, character, energy and sincerity of purpose are required for successful achievement. Mr. Hays has developed an expert organization and staff to create, organize and administer any phase of co-operative or associated endeavor of firms, individuals or industries. Republican. Mr. Woolman has recently offered to the Board of Trustees of the University of Pennsylvania his farm known as "Cressbrook," which consists of 178 acres of rolling land on Valley Creek at Valley Forge. This land was granted by William Penn to John Havard in 1701. The house was built in 1740 (the year the university was founded), and was occupied during the encampment by Lord Stirling, one of Washington's most dependable Generals and by General du Portail, Chief Engineer, who planned the encampment and built the entrenchments. Overlooking Cressbrook Farm, which adjoins the Valley Forge Park, is the noble equestrian statue of Major General Anthony Wayne, of the Class of 1765. This location seems to be the outstanding historical background for young American boys, and four years spent in such an environment, which grips the imagination and sentiments of America through its hallowed and patriotic associations and self-sacrificing devotion to principal would send forth men to higher ideals of service and patriotism than could be acquired anywhere in the country. these qualities are integrity of the highest order and executive ability which makes him one of the best assets any city or nation could possibly have. For many generations back when an especially knotty problem presented itself it has been the custom to observe that it would require a Philadelphia lawyer to solve it, a tribute won by the able members of the bar, who have always distinguished the Quaker City. Mr. Baxter is an example of that type of lawyer that is helping to keep alive the best traditions of the legal fraternity in Pennsylvania. His clients know him as a power to be reckoned with under any circumstances and that is largely accountable for the remarkably large and lucrative clientele that has crowned his unflagging efforts. Quietly and unobtrusively the work which Mr. Baxter accomplishes has the enduring quality, and in this respect, the personality of the man is exemplified. As a citizen he has always taken an active interest in the civic affairs of the city and is ever an advocate of anything that tends towards the advancement of the community. He is just as highly esteemed in social and club circles of the Quaker City as he is in his profession and is a man who applies the same high standard of ethics to this every-day life as he does to his professional endeavor. Mr. Baxter is well known in other circles of the Quaker City and has a host of friends from all walks of life. Republican. Protestant Episcopal. Recreation—farming. still maintained by four of his sons, who are members of the bar. Mr. Daly was a prominent member of the Philadelphia Bar and an authority on finance and corporation law, real property, wills and decedents' estates, and as an orator he had gifts which marked him for distinction. Learning, personal magnetism, and a flashing wit combined to make him a forceful and convincing speaker. Among the honors which he declined were an appointment to the Federal bench, and another to the bench of the Court of Common Pleas. He was a member of the American, Pennsylvania and Philadelphia County Bar Associations and a charter member of the Lawyers' Club. He married Mary T. Murray, and to them were born seven children—John M., May Bernedotte (wife of Albert Tate Smith, of West Orange, N. J., whose children are Diana and Albert Tate Smith, Jr.); Esther, Charles T., James M., Louis J. M. and Thaddeus M. Daly served in the U. S. Army from April, 1917, and in France from November, 1917, until the end of war. T. M. Daly was a man of versatile talents and those talents he used not for his own profit and aggrandizement alone, but for the advancement of the interests of his community, and for aiding and uplifting his fellow-men. He was a public-spirited citizen and a truly high-minded man. The financial and legal annals of Philadelphia can show the names of many men who contributed in a high degree to the financial and commercial prosperity of their city, and on that roll of honor the name of the late T. M. Daly, President of the Continental-Equitable Title and Trust Company, shines with no inconspicuous lustre.

A. J. H. FRANK, B.A.

dogmatic teachings. His ideas on these metaphysics were woven into two most original speeches; known as his Allegorical Lectures on "Spools of Thread" and "Sparks from the Dynamo," delivered in Washington and elsewhere in 1886 and 1888, and a pamphlet he published during the Campaign of 1889, on the Prohibition issue, and the proposed prohibitory amendment, which were commended by eminent critics. He then took an active interest in the prohibition cause, making speeches in the party's campaign, but criticized their platform when side issues, based upon religious bigotry, were introduced and which tended to sidetrack the main issue, which as he put it, was: "to perceive the evil effects of the traffic." In 1888 he studied law with ex-Judge Hepburn's son, Samuel, Jr., a brilliant lawyer of the Carlisle Bar, and after his decease under ex-Judge Martin C. Herman, who was one of the most conscientious jurists known, from whose office he was admitted to the Cumberland County Bar in 1892. Moved to Philadelphia, Pa., October, 1893, entering the law offices of Congressman R. O. Moon, at Sixth and Walnut Streets, and was admitted to this bar, 1894. Practiced there at 146 South Sixth Street, for two years with Mr. Moon. In 1895 Thomas H. Speakman, a prominent old lawyer and well-known radical Hicksite Friend, owner of the office building at 26 North Seventh Street, invited Mr. Frank to practice there, which he did until 1917 when this old office and residential site of the city's historical center was torn down to make room for a department store. For years many noted lawyers had their offices in this old row along Seventh Street, above Market, among them were Judges Mitchell, Fell, Magill and Attorneys Moore and Warwick. Practiced at 26 North Seventh Street for twenty-two years, during which, to mention but a few deeds, gives him a place to stand on record. His efforts before a jury in the noted Hester case, tried in 1896 where a verdict was obtained for her, thereby reversing a sheriff's jury finding, and the several bills which he drafted, improving on the laws then governing such cases, and which the Legislature of 1897 enacted, and one which he argued before the Governor on behalf of her liberty, won him well-deserved praise. He prepared a Libel Bill in 1898 which attracted much public attention. He received the public approval of eminent jurists, the Hon. C. B. Penrose and others, by reason of the several victories he obtained in the Topham case, reversing the Register of Wills and being finally sustained by the Orphans' Court, Philadelphia, Pa. Judge Penrose's Opinion upholding Florence Topham's claim, as reported, and also as shown in the contested case of the Frost Estate in the Probate Court of Detroit in 1904-05, which resulted in reversing the lower tribunal of Wayne County, Michigan, and also in the case of Bruner vs. Finleys, reported in 211 Pa., 74, where his contention was sustained by Mr. Justice Mestrazet, of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, March 6, 1905, in reversing the Court of Common Pleas No. 1, of Philadelphia, Pa. His legal services have been very marked in other very technical cases, such as Hilma Nelson's Appeal which he argued (1914-15) in the Supreme Court of the United States, in process of which he caused the practice of taking verdicts in the United States Courts to be set aright, and his earlier efforts also corrected former practices in the Sheriff's Office brought about by the various trials of the J. P. Bruner cases which he conducted in the Court of Common Pleas No. 2, Philadelphia, Pa., covering a long period from the lower to the higher courts. He removed his offices January, 1917, to 11 South Ninth Street, next door to Leary's Old Book Store, where he continued in active practice until April, 1924, when this old residential building was torn down to make room for another department store. On the upper floors of this large Colonial structure Major Knight a Civil War veteran, had resided until late years, as a voter of the 9th Ward. Since April, 1924, Mr. Frank's law offices have been located at 36 South Seventh Street, with room at adjoining property and rear of 705 Chestnut Street, where he has removed his large library containing old, rare books of general philosophies, together with his old relics of revolutionary days and antiques, which he has possessed so many years and highly prizes, and there he still holds his ground, as active as before in one of the old historical sites of the First Division of the 9th Ward, at Seventh and Chestnut Streets, as against all inroads made by large department stores in displacing so many old landmarks in this historical center. He is single, residing with his father. Years ago he took an active part in several of the leading orders and associations of the country. But above all else, including the honorary degrees of institutions which he has earned and those which have been offered him, he has preferred from youth up, to lay stress upon the honor and opinion of the few, who, while in the minority, have been found on the right side of issues, fighting against the popular side of the majorities when in error.

his employers asking him to come to headquarters at their expense, he did so and refused their first offer, but upon deliberation he accepted their second offer and for four years with the assistance of about one hundred salesmen, he covered Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Tasmania and South Africa, having his headquarters at Melbourne, Australia. He returned to America the latter part of 1879 and immediately entered the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor, where he graduated from the Law Department and a select course in the Literary Department. The next three years following his graduation he traveled extensively in Canada, The Maritime Provinces, West Indies and the northern part of South America. In the year 1886 he began the practice of law at Williamsport, Pa., and for twenty years he was successful in building up an extensive business in law, real estate and manufacturing. In 1906 he moved to Philadelphia, Pa., where he resumed the practice of law in his home city and New York City. Soon after settling in Philadelphia, Pa., he organized the Business Service Company with offices in New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Chicago, Minneapolis, St. Louis and connections in Denver, London and Havana. He was married in Williamsport, Pa., to Sue M. Dayton, and is the father of two sons and two daughters. He has always been a Republican, but independent, with his face set against fraud and corruption in politics and was Chairman of the Citizens Committee, which started the fight against the corrupt ring in Pennsylvania, which culminated in the conviction, through the faithful efforts of his friend, the late James Scarlett, of Danville, Pa., of eight of the conspirators, who stole about $6,000,000 of the people's money, five of whom served a just sentence and the other three died, while the gang of "hangers-on" disgorged about $3,000,000. He is a Presbyterian and since 1888 has been an elder in the church, as well as a Director in the Y. M. C. A. for many years, and Chairman of the Finance and Building Committee.

Providence Steam and Gas Pipe Company, of Providence, R. I. (now the Grinnell Automatic Sprinkler Company). Later in charge of their Philadelphia, Pa., office and factory. In 1882 he entered the manufacturing business in the employ of V. Henry Rothschild & Company, New York. Later transferred to Richmond, Va., in charge of their branch factory. In 1884 he began insurance work as a clerk in the office of the Keystone Mutual Fire Insurance Company, of which his father was Secretary. He succeeded his father as Secretary in 1888, and became President, Treasurer and Director in 1903. In 1888 he established the firm of F. A. Downes & Company (later F. A. Downes & Son), who operates an extensive agency and brokerage business. In 1892 he organized the Standard Mutual Fire Insurance Company of Philadelphia, of which he became Secretary. He retired from this company in 1894 to organize the Manton Mutual Fire Insurance Company of Philadelphia, Pa., becoming its Secretary, and was elected President, Treasurer and Director in 1905. In 1893 he organized the Mercantile Mutual Fire Insurance Company of Philadelphia, Pa., of which he became its Secretary, which did an extensive business throughout the United States insuring mercantile hazards. In 1898 he purchased a controlling interest in the Merchantville Light, Heat and Power Company, which company controlled the gas and electric lighting of Merchantville, Pensauken, Dudley and Stockton (the latter two now a part of Camden), of which he became President and Treasurer. In 1899 he consolidated under the title of the Camden and Burlington Gas and Electric Company, the Merchantville Light, Heat and Power Company, the Haddonfield (N. J.) Light, Heat and Power Company, Moorestown (N. J.) Electric Light Company, Mt. Holly Electric Light and Power Company, which latter company owned in conjunction with their electric light plant the horse car line in Mt. Holly, water power and several manufacturing plants. He later assisted in the purchase of the electric light plant and gas plant at Camden, N. J.; at Gloucester City, N. J., gas plant and electric light plant, and the Camden-Gloucester and Woodbury Street Railway, which was reconsolidated with the Camden and Burlington Gas and Electric Company under the title of the South Jersey Gas, Electric and Traction Company, now owned by the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey. In 1901 he organized the National Mutual Assurance Company of Philadelphia, of which he became its President and Treasurer. In 1904 he organized for the Cotton Seed Crushers' Association a Mutual Fire Insurance Company, in which the leading cotton seed oil manufacturers were interested, known as the Cotton Seed Crushers' Mutual Assurance Company, who specialized in the underwriting of cotton seed oil mills and fertilizer manufacturing and warehouse plants. He was made President and Treasurer of this company. In 1907 he organized for the National Fertilizer Association the Southern States Mutual Fire Insurance Company, to specialize in the underwriting of fertilizer manufacturing plants and warehouses exclusively, of which he became President and Treasurer. Later he consolidated the Cotton Seed Crushers' Mutual Assurance Company and the Southern States Mutual Fire Insurance Company into one organization and changed the name to the Atlantic Mutual Fire Insurance Company of Philadelphia, of which he was elected President and Treasurer. In 1907 he and his associates purchased a controlling interest in the Atlantic Radiator Company, who owned a large plant at Huntingdon, Pa., and became its President. In 1916 he and his associate, Mr. William T. Elliott, President of the Central National Bank, of Philadelphia, purchased a controlling interest in the Commercial Box and Envelope Company, who owned a large plant on Karlein Street, Chester, Pa., of which he became President and General Manager. ADOLPH CHRISTENSEN

Adolph Christensen left school shortly after attaining the age of fourteen, and went to sea. He studied navigation at the Sandefjord Navigation School during the winter of 1884, passed his examinations successfully and shipped the following spring as first mate of a sailing vessel in European waters. He came to Philadelphia in 1886, and for two years thereafter followed the sea in steam and sail, upon Atlantic Coast waters. In 1888 he became engaged as a rigger in the construction of the Drexel Building, the first large structure of its kind built of marble in Philadelphia, Pa. While thus engaged he studied the problems of using cement and mortar to the best advantage for pointing seams of exterior brick and stonework, and he then established in Philadelphia the first specialized industry of that kind known in the United States. Later Mr. Christensen developed a method of renovating exterior brick surfaces, which method has today practically taken the place of the former method of painting them. In this field he was a pioneer, and today his processes and methods are followed elsewhere in the United States, and mostly by men who, under his training, have become schooled in that art. ALBERT JOHN COUNTY

Caven Dudley, September 2, 1907. Father of William F., born September 10, 1903, and John O., born December 12, 1908. Began railway career as clerk in Purchasing and Stores Department of Great Southern & Western Railway, in Dublin, Ireland, in 1885. Came to Philadelphia in 1890 and entered service in the Pennsylvania Railroad as a clerk in the Secretary's Department. In 1898, appointed Chief Clerk, and became Assistant to the Secretary in 1900. In 1901, appointed Assistant Secretary of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company and its important subsidiary companies; also Superintendent of the Pennsylvania Railroad Employees' Saving Fund. During 1906-1916, acted as assistant to Mr. Samuel Rea, Vice-President and later President, in the respective capacities of Assistant to Vice-President and Special Assistant to President of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company and other companies in its System. This was a period of very active engineering projects by the Pennsylvania Railroad System, and expansions of ownership in large railroads under the "Community of Interest" plan. Under that plan the Pennsylvania Railroad joined with other railroad owners in acquiring a large ownership in the Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake & Ohio and Norfolk & Western Railroads. Among the notable engineering projects of this period were the completion of the Pennsylvania Railroad's tunnel extension into and through New York, N. Y., the Pennsylvania Station, New York, N. Y., and the New York Connecting Railroad with its Hell Gate Bridge, as the connecting links between the New Haven, the Long Island, and the Pennsylvania Systems for passenger and freight traffic. Many far-reaching corporate consolidations and mergers were consummated in this period; a controlling interest in the Long Island Railroad was purchased; the Richmond-Washington Company, owned by six large railroad systems, was formed to control the road between these two cities so that it might be reconstructed and co-operatively used for their traffic. Mr. County became its Secretary and later its Vice-President. After twenty-six years' experience, Mr. County was appointed Vice-President in charge of Accounting, of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company and its subsidiary companies on March 8, 1916. Effective July 1, 1925, he was elected Vice-President in charge of the Treasury and Accounting Departments, and Corporate Work. In discharging the duties of these various departments, Mr. County serves either as President or Vice-President and Director of practically all of the companies in the Pennsylvania Railroad System. He is a Director of Norfolk & Western Railway Company, and Girard National Bank, Philadelphia, Pa.; a member of the Executive Council and Standing Committee of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Pennsylvania; a Vestryman of St. Mary's Memorial Protestant Episcopal Church, Wayne, Pa.; Vice-President of the Pennsylvania Railroad Young Men's Christian Association and Director of the Philadelphia Young Men's Christian Association. Republican. Protestant Episcopal. Recreations—any outdoor, healthful exercise; the home and family and the woods and streams are prime favorites. short course at a commercial school. In 1869, he entered the employ of Wainwright & Company, wholesale grocers, for a term of five years. In 1875, with a cousin, under the firm name of J. C. & T. R. Osbourn, engaged in the wholesale cloth business at 31 Bank Street, Philadelphia, Pa., which continued for seven years, when the firm dissolved, and the business closed up July, 1882. Having previously invested a considerable capital in the stock of a Maryland Coal Company, he took an extended course in geology, mineralogy, and coal geology, analysis and mining; he accompanied this with active practical work in the coal fields, and in the opening of mines, and developing the coal property of the Empire Coal Company, of Maryland, in which he had invested; and later, in introducing and finding a market and trade for the coal output of the mines of the Empire Coal Company, as Secretary and Treasurer of that company. During his work and residence in the Maryland coal regions in 1888-89, he opened the first mine in the "Four-Foot Vein" of the George's Creek-Potomac Coal Region, that was ever worked continuously and commercially, on the lands of the Empire Coal Company, at Bloomington, Maryland. He also during that period made vertical coal sections, by instrument and barometer, of the coal basin around Westernport, Md., and Piedmont, W. Va., which was published in the Coal Trade Journal, September 20, 1893. In March, 1892, he patented a mechanical drawing or labor-saving coke oven, and various coke quenching apparatus and during a year's residence in the Connellsville coke region, he made a full and extensive examination of the practice and prevailing methods of coking in the "Beehive Oven," and the possibility of improvement, both in oven and method, which was published in detail in the Trade Journal for June 30, 1895. He is former Secretary and Treasurer of the Bellefonte Central Railroad Company, and of the Nelsonville Coal and Land Company and the Empire Coal Company. He also had other and varied business interests pertaining to marketing coal from mines and lands in which he was interested. Republican. Presbyterian. Recreations—tennis, gunning and trout fishing. Clubs and Societies—Pennsylvania Society, Sons of the Revolution (life member), Undine Boat Club, Historical Society of Pennsylvania (life member), Order of Founders and Patriots of America (life member), Germantown Cricket Club. KERN DODGE

1851, he filled the position of Superintendent of Public Schools, Providence, R. I., and from 1855 to 1883 occupied the chair of higher mathematics, mechanics, astronomy and logic, at Brown University, where, in the former year, he was Professor of Mathematics and Civil Engineering. He received from the University the degree of Doctor of Laws and was the author of "Greene's Analysis of English," and "Greene's Grammar." He married Edna Amelia Bartlett, born October 21, 1816, at Webster, Mass., and their son, Frank Bartlett, is mentioned below. Samuel Stillman Greene died January 24, 1883. Frank Bartlett Greene, son of Samuel Stillman and Edna Amelia (Bartlett) Greene, was born March 18, 1851, at Worcester, Mass., and received his preparatory education in the public schools of Providence, R. I. In 1872 he graduated from Brown University, with the degree of Bachelor of Arts and Master of Arts. From that time to the close of his life he was a well-known and successful publisher in Boston, Mass.; New York, N. Y., and Philadelphia, Pa. He was a Republican, but never either sought or held office. He and his family were members of the Baptist Church. He married March 18, 1879, in Philadelphia, Pa., Jane Peterson Deacon, born Philadelphia, Pa., May 16, 1858, daughter of Charles T. and Helen (Longstreth) Deacon, and they became the parents of a son and a daughter, Bartlett, born January 28, 1880 and Helen Peterson, mentioned below. Frank Bartlett Greene died August 11, 1922. Helen Peterson Greene, daughter of Frank Bartlett and Jane Peterson (Deacon) Greene, was born May 14, 1881, and became the wife of Kern Dodge, as stated above. James Manes Dodge, son of William and Mary Elizabeth (Manes) Dodge, was born June 30, 1852, in Waverly, N. J., and was a prominent business man of Philadelphia, Pa., for years head of the Link-Belt Engineering Company. He married

Josephine Kern, daughter of Charles and Mary Ann (Whitman) Kern, of Chicago, Ill., the former a native of Bavaria, Germany, and the latter born in America. He died December 4, 1915. His biography and portrait, with his ancestral record appear in Volume——, of——. William Dodge, 4th, was the son of William, 3d, and Susan (Johnson) Dodge. Born May 7, 1815. He married September 14, 1851, Mary Elizabeth Mapes, born January 26, 1830, who was the daughter of James Jay and Sophia (Furman) Mapes and they became the parents of two sons, James Mapes and Harrington M. Dodge. Mrs. Dodge died August 21, 1905. William Dodge, 3d, son of William Dodge, 2d, married Susan Johnson, May 11, 1814. William Dodge, 2d, son of Samuel, 2d, and Helena (Amerman) Dodge, was born March 5, 1758, in New York City, N. Y., and died in 1847. Samuel Dodge, 2d, son of Samuel, 1st, and Elizabeth Dodge, was born March 29, 1730, in Cow Neck (Port Washington), Long Island, New York, and was a noted astronomer, a man of literary tastes and the author of various poems of merit. During the Revolutionary War, he served as a Captain in the New York line and in 1779 represented Dutchess County in the New York Legislature. He married August 4, 1753, in New York, N. Y., Helena Amerman, born May 1, 1735, and they moved probably before the outbreak of the Revolutionary War, to Poughkeepsie, N. Y. From 1793 to 1802, Mr. Dodge was keeper of the almshouse, City Hall Park. He died in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., October 4, 18—, and in 1817 his widow also passed away. Samuel Dodge, 1st, son of William and Sarah (George) Dodge, was born September 9, 1691. He removed about 1718 to Cow Neck (Port Washington, Long Island, New York). He married Elizabeth ———— and his will was proved in 1761. William Dodge was the son of Tristram Dodge and was made a freeman of the borough, as were his three brothers, in 1670. He married Sarah, daughter of Peter and Mary George, and it is thought he may have married again, as New Shoreham records say that William Dodge married April 24, 1694. Tristram Dodge, the earliest recorded ancestor, was of an English family of ancient origin and in 1661 was living in Taunton, Mass., and sailed in April of that year for Block Island, R. I. He was one of the original fifteen settlers, who, with their families, established themselves on the island. His sons followed him from England in 1667. The family was located in England in the north of England, near the Tweed. Children—Dorothy, born October 10, 1905, in Philadelphia, Pa., graduated from Shady Hill Country Day School, Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia, Pa.; Donald, born May 24, 1907, Philadelphia, Pa., now attending the Taft School, Watertown, Connecticut; Jane, born September 1, 1909, at Jamestown, R. I., now attending Shady Hill Country Day School, Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia, Pa.; Robert Mapes, born October 15, 1917, at Ventnor, N. J., now attending the Germantown Academy, Germantown, Philadelphia, Pa. Educated at the Germantown Academy, Philadelphia, Pa.; graduated in 1899, and the Drexel Institute, Class of 1901, Department of Mechanic Arts. In the same year he formed a partnership under the name of Dodge & Kay, engineers. The firm engaged successfully in consulting engineering, later adding construction and utility departments. In 1912, he disposed of his interest, and has ever since been engaged in private consulting engineering practice, with headquarters in Philadelphia, Pa. He is also interested in a number of industrial engineering enterprises and has been very successful in handling difficult industrial problems as receiver of numerous concerns. He is helpfully interested in all that tends to advance Philadelphia, Pa., and exercises quiet liberality toward worthy charities. During the World War he was connected, in special work with the office of Naval Intelligence. He stands high in his profession and is a man to whom obstacles serve rather as an impetus to renewed effort than as a bar to progress. He is worthily maintaining the traditions of the ancient family from which he springs. Republican. Unitarian. Member of the Franklin Institute of Philadelphia, Pa.; the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, New York; the American Institute of Electrical Society, New York; the Taylor Society, New York; the New England Society of Pennsylvania (Philadelphia), the Union League Club, Philadelphia; the Keystone Automobile Club, Vice-President, the Engineers' Club, Philadelphia, Pa.; the Engineers' Club, New York; Seaview Golf Club, Atlantic City, N. J.; Penn Athletic Club, Philadelphia, Pa.; Old Colony Club, New York City, N. Y.; Franklin Institute Club, Philadelphia, Pa., and the Beltry Club, Germantown, Philadelphia, Pa. The game of golf is one of Mr. Dodge's favorite recreations. Residence, 425 West Clapier Street, Germantown, Philadelphia, Pa. Business address, Morris Building, Philadelphia, Pa.

individual and team work in leadership and organization. Then Medical School, University of Pennsylvania, 1876-1878, hospital interneship; for years in dispensary work for children, throat and nose, urology and dermatology, holding various clinical positions. Also learned the (then rare) craftsmanship of Swedish movements, induced and resisted. Later, laboratory work in physiology, aiding Professor Reichert, especially carrying out researches for Dr. S. Weir Mitchell in snake venoms. Acted as Dr. Mitchell's assistant for fifteen years, and later as his Chief of Clinic at the Infirmary for Nervous Diseases. Thus exceptional opportunities were afforded for collaboration in the care of complex diseases of body, mind, nerves and personality, demanding long and exact exploration and systematic reconstruction, oftentimes being enabled to raise the individual to higher planes of vigor than heretofore. Also he was often sent by Dr. Mitchell to accompany men convalescents on long outings and hunting trips in the United States, the Canadas and Europe (e. g., Joseph Pulitzer on the Mediterranean). Thus he saw much of the world, health resorts, spas and foreign methods of cure. Later, especially while practicing at Bar Harbor, Me., in summers of 1891-1909, he became Physician to the Foreign Ambassadors; also to many statesmen (e. g., James G. Blaine), and others distinguished in varied lines of high endeavor, in the arts, dramatic, plastic, musical and others. One summer, 1886, was spent thus at Theodore Roosevelt's ranch in Dakota. Always he kept in mind as paramount the full reestablishment of the human body, so like a living, self-repairing, self-guiding, engine and a self-directing energy or spirit, was by restoring to symmetry and adaptation of the grosser parts as a necessary condition of organic and spiritual harmony in the finer parts, cells, reflex circuits, hydraulics, pneumatics and bio-chemical mechanisms. Thus the true aim in cure is to re-establish the prodigal resources of nature, the automatic defense and repair forces, through a re-balancing or poising of structures and interactions, being superior to medication, or as a full equivalent and necessary part, of finished restorative endeavor. The hospital and lecturing positions held were many and varied. The first professional position was on diseases of children at the Polyclinic School for Graduates in Medicine from 1884, for fifteen years, also the same chair at the Medico-Chirurgical College; next became Professor of Applied Therapeutics at the Medical Department of Temple University, 1919; later of Physical Therapeutics and Dietetics. He has contributed 350 essays and articles to medical and scientific and some lay journals. Also his first book was (with Wells) on Diseases of Children, later a section on: "Development and Deformation in Children," (225 pages. Wells & McKee, 2 vols.). Also a book called "Ourselves," a "Personal and Family Record for One Couple and Their Children." Also a book (not yet published) on "The Man Who Would Be Young at Fifty"; also one on "The Nervous Invalid as a Factor in Society With Advice to Family and Friends." Also, "Adventures in Eluding the Ravages of Time," for the middle-aged. Major, State Fencibles, M. C.; also Major in the Medical Students' Army Corps, the first organization in United States by D. Ch. DeM. Sajous, at Temple University; declined by United States Army on account of over age. Republican. Protestant Episcopal. Canada, where friends had preceeded him. After a short time in Canada he decided to throw in his lot with the United States, which, from his point of view, offered exceptional opportunities to ambitious young men. Went from Toronto, Canada, to Detroit, Michigan, where he began to study medicine with the view of becoming a medical missionary. In 1896, he received his State license to practice medicine, surgery and obstetrics. Immediately became deeply interested in the practice of medical electricity through the influence of his preceptor, Dr. Thomas H. Hicks, who was, at that time, a professor and gold medalist in this science. Since 1897, has specialized in the practice of Electro-Therapy, and has long been recognized as a pioneer, teacher, lecturer and leader in this particular science. Was the third man in the United States to use the X-ray for therapeutic purposes, and the first man in Pennsylvania to use radium for the treatment of cancer. The first radiographs in Pennsylvania, and probably in the United States, were developed by him, and exhibited by The American Electric Therapeutic Association at the University of Pennsylvania. Was also the first man to note and record the fact that the X-ray would turn the flesh of a negro to a lighter color. This fact was also noted some months later at the University of Pennsylvania. At the outbreak of the war, he was offered a commission as Civilian Aviator-Instructor in Ballooning, but instead of accepting this, he devoted his time giving illustrated lectures on Ballooning and Aviation at Mt. Gretna and other camps when ordered. Is an authority on ballooning in general; President of the Philadelphia Aeronautical Recreation Society, Director of the Aero Club of Pennsylvania, and the holder of the Altitude Distance and Time in the Air records for Pennsylvania. Has a record of over one hundred and fifty ascensions, twenty-five all-night trips, and one parachute drop from an altitude of thirty-five hundred feet. Recreations—training birds and dogs, motoring, canoeing and flying. Clubs—Member of Penn Athletic Club, American Academy of Political and Social Science, the Penn Club, Penn Barge Club, Optimist Club, City Business Club, Lions Club and many fraternal and religious organizations. Also patentee of processes for the production of alcohol from waste products and the utilization of such alcohol for motor fuel purposes in place of gasoline. Have now (1926) six plants in operation producing such alcoholic fuel. Developed and patented processes for the economic conversion of saw dust into sugar and fuel alcohol. Developed the processes for the production of compressed yeast for molasses and mineral salts. Proved the value of yeast as a nutritive and corrective agent, and introduced same in commerce, thus being responsible for the tremendous increase in the consumption of yeast. Developed the process and introduced the first green malt—diastatic malt extract in the U. S. A. Reported by the internationally known engineer, Walter G. Clarke: "The most proficient man in both American and European countries in the science of fermentation and distillation." Received favorable public commendations in Canada, Australia and Colombia, S. A., also in Cuba on the scientific achievements for producing an economical and efficient alcoholic motor fuel, outdistancing gasoline. Recipient of an award of merit for Distinguished Engineering Services, by the American Association of Engineers (1926). Author of the following treatises: "The Importance of Yeast as a Medical and Nutritive Agent," "Synthetically Prepared Food Materials," "Some False Pretenses in Science," "Compressed Yeast as a Sugar By-Product," "The Utilization of Molasses in the Manufacture of Compressed Yeast, Industrial Alcohol, Motor Fuel, Ether, Vinegar, Potash and Carbonic Acid Gas," "The Future of the Sugar Industry," "The Economic Conditions of the Sugar Industry," "The Importance of Alcohol and Its Relations to National Economics," "The Chemical Engineer," "Recovering Values from Waste Products by Distillation," "The Ethical Side of Alcohol in Engineering" (1926), "'La Utilizacion de Las Mieles' on la Fabricacion de 'Lavadura Comprimida, Alcohol, Combustible de Motor, Eter, Vinagre, potass y Gas Acido Carbonico"; "El Futuro de la Industria Azucareno." GEORGE J. BROWN

nice Stockton, born 1888. Under the mistaken idea that a known need implies a want, has been a teacher for more than fifty years, only to learn that in general, all knowledge is acquired under protest, that the greatest economy of the average student is in his use of brain power, and that, while nature may abhor a vacuum, is the average man's most cherished belonging. One outstanding fact: after nearly fifty years' careful observation and study of all possible student types in Brown Preparatory, a school dedicated to the development of power in the student, it is impossible to escape the conclusion, that the use of mental power creates mental power and that, contrary to the general belief, students fail, not from lack of ability, but from the lack of interest—the lack of an incentive to use the ability which they have. With interest aroused, the student who cannot go on increasing his mental power, by using such power as he has, is practically non-existent; for interest can be aroused and, to some degree, power can be developed in every one. This development will come when it is generally recognized that all desirable conditions and things are the results of human activities, and that civilization itself is but a manifestation of power developed in its individual units. Born a Republican, but believing that conservatism and radicalism alike are due to ignorance, has many years voted for practical progressive measures, regardless of party. Early training, Quaker. Not a member of a religious denomination. Interested in gardening, out-door games, anything that takes one into the open places. Residence, Delair, N. J. young man was very much in demand at lodge and parlor entertainments, as a singer of comic songs and clog dancer, in which he was an adept, and also did professional fancy trick roller skating at the skating rink, where he taught roller skating in the evenings. At the age of twenty years, was converted in the Methodist Episcopal Church in the City of Lebanon, Pa.; in the year 1885, he joined the Moore Independent Movement, called the Salvation Army of America, enrolling as a soldier under Staff Captain Emma Westbrook. In June, 1885, sailed for England, where he was requested to hold services in Bradford for the Booth Salvation Army; in 1885 he returned to his home in Lebanon, Pa., and went back to his trade as a bolt and nut maker, devoting his time in the evenings and on Sundays to the work his heart was interested in, the saving of souls for his Lord and Master, Jesus Christ; so enthusiastic was he in his work as a soldier, that it was not long before he was appointed a Sergeant-Major of the corps at Lebanon, and conducted meetings there for the interests of the Salvation Army of America, still continuing to work at his trade, however, in the day time; later resigned from his trade that he might give his entire time and talent to the cause of Christ; was transferred to the station at Columbia, Pa., with the rank of Captain; later promoted to District Commander; opened Mission Hall in Reading; later transferred to Holidaysburg, Pa., in 1891; in April of 1894, was requested to take command of the Salvation Army, which he accepted. In 1896, at Coatesville, Pa., was elected General for a period of five years; later moved to Philadelphia, Pa. In 1889, was re-elected as Commander-in-Chief for a period of ten years; later re-elected as leader again for a further period of ten years. Owing to rapid growth, moved to 2827 Frankford Avenue, Philadelphia, Pa.; a Bible Training School was started, and a free dispensary for the relief of the suffering poor. MAP, SHOWING POPULATION, WITH CIRCLES OF VARYING DISTANCES FROM THE CITY

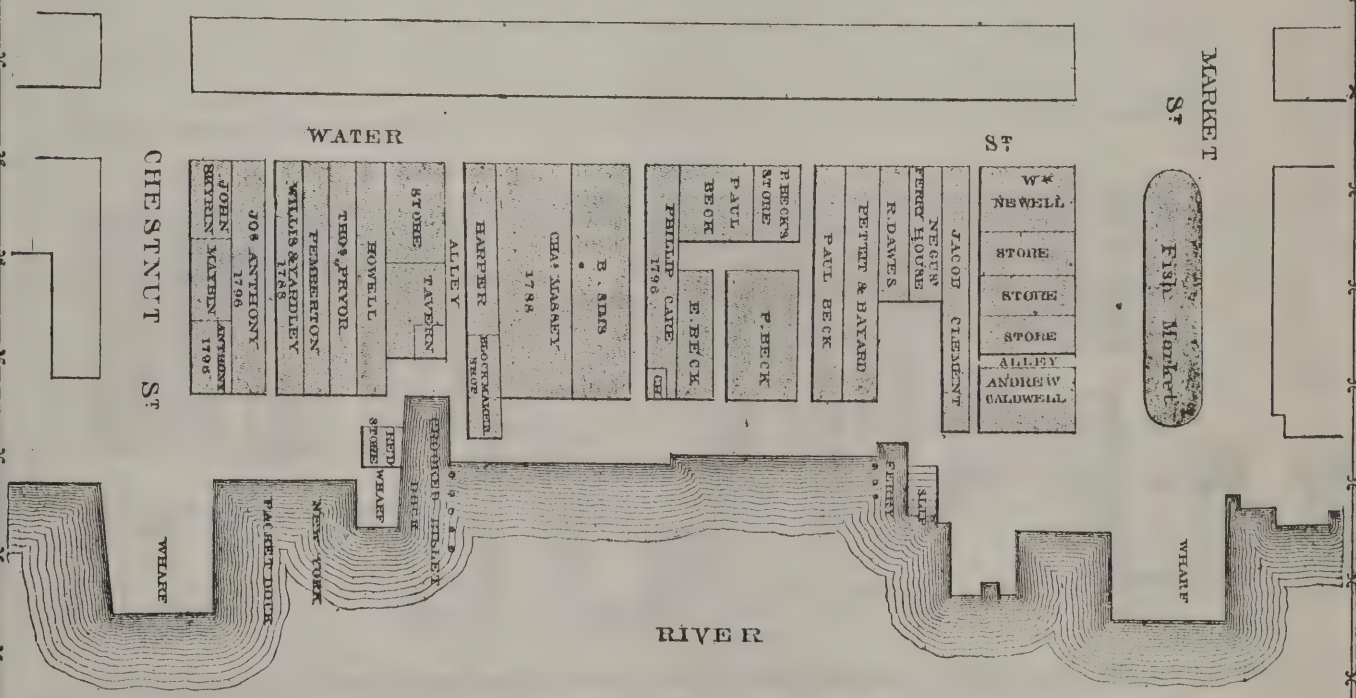
Market Street Wharf was a wood wharf and a fish market. The hill here, as those at Arch and Race Streets, was quick and severe and was used in the winter as a racing course for sleds which flew rapidly from the summit to the base. Carts, drays and wagons were few on these routes, except now and then the slow zig-zag course of a wood laden cart as the poor beasts smitten under the lash, strove to do their master's bidding.

The next dock, below Market Street, was the harbor of the Wilmington and New Castle pockets. James Caldwell in charge of the office with the "Fly," the "Morning Star" and the "Rising Sun."

A line of packets and schooners ran in 1805 from New York by sea from the first wharf below the Crooked Billet and was established by D. & P. L'Homedieu of New York. Two schooners, one the "David" and the other the "Philip," noted for their fleetness, constituted the line.



THE DELAWARE RIVER FRONT FROM MARKET ST. (formerly called High St.) TO CHESTNUT ST. IN 1805

Wood wharves for family supply, there was no coal in those days, took up a considerable portion of the landing place. The street was unpaved, narrow in places, and deep in mud. Drownings from falling through or under the rotten wharf ends were of not infrequent occurrence.

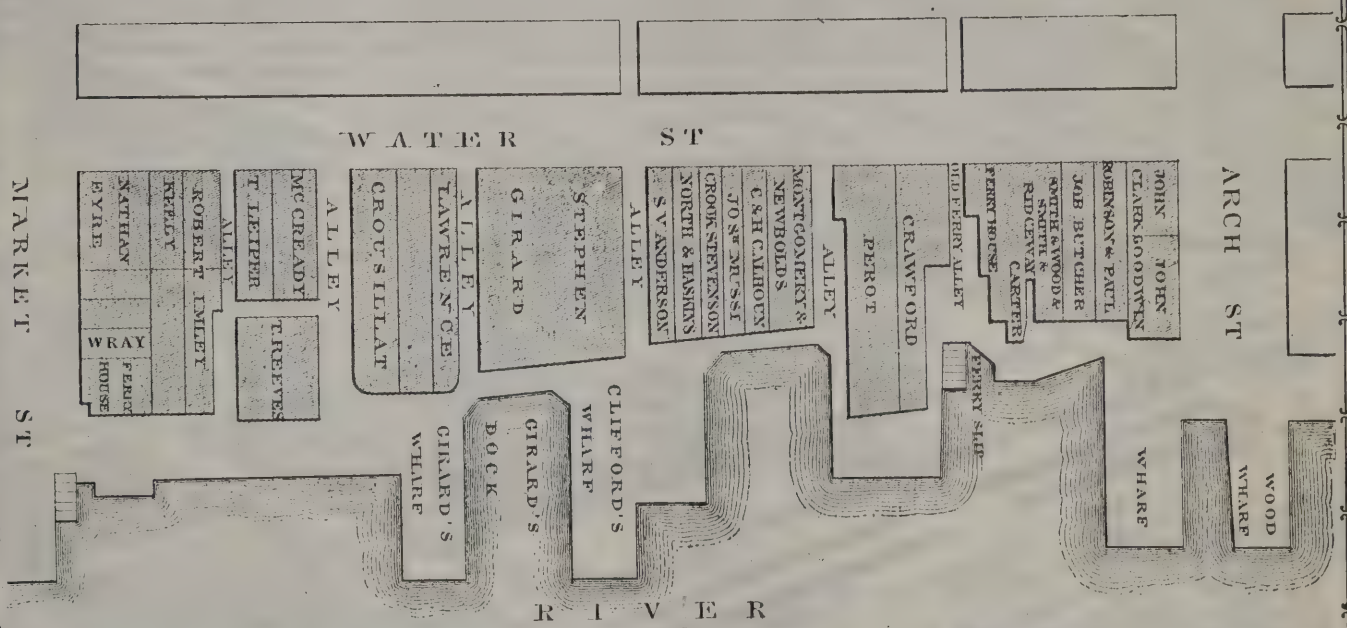
In 1807, George Hands started an opposition in a larger class of boats and heralded the "Diana," the "Telegraph" and the "Little George Eyre" at No. 8 below. But there were fancy gatherings which were more attractive than packets or pleasure boats. Peach boats took a hitch here and watermelons in seasons flew from hand to hand with an occassional slip for the tooth and taste of the wistful urchin. Six pence would buy one-half peck of good peaches and watermelons sold for a penny.

The passage around the corner from the Crooked Billet so called from the end of the wharf which was built of crooked and twisted timber, was very narrow and dangerous and on December 2nd, 1807, Mr. Isaac Jones, in his sixty-fourth year, paid the penalty by falling in and drowning. It was a complete man trap and many others drowned here also.

The wharf below this was a mart for the exposition and sale of ships "cambooses" made by E. G. & W. Ashbridge. A little lower down Joseph Smith occupied the corner as an iron store, while Smith and Carson occupied the second floor as a counting house for their general commercial enterprises.

Good, old fashioned shallops berthed at the foot of Arch Street Wharf, passing to domestic comfort and economy hickory, oak, pine, maple and gum.

A two-story stone building was occupied by John Goodwin, shipchandler, the father of Thomas D. Goodwin, well-known in the years just before the Civil War. The shipchandler often suffered the loss of a barrel of tar which was used to celebrate on election nights. Further down was the flour store of Hugh and Joseph Ely and Smith & Wood, adjoining the passage to the old ferry which was a dilapidated affair in 1800, but relieved the Arch Street throng.



THE DELAWARE RIVER FRONT FROM ARCH ST. TO MARKET ST. (formerly called High St.) IN 1805

Water Street was right on the wharf then. There was no Front Street and no Delaware Avenue. Stephen Girard's warehouse and counting room was in this block.

After a few intervals came the warehouse of Stephen Girard and his docks. The Clifford's Wharf adjoining, was later bought by Stephen Girard also, and after his death the city took it over and fortified it with piling. Before these repairs, Clifford's Wharf had sunk to low water mark, the breast having given way at its base. It was called the "Broken Wharf." At high tide it was used as an available and convenient basin for bathing and learners in the art of swiming, particulary boys.

In these days Water Street was right on the river front, there being no Front Street and no Delaware Avenue which have since been filled in and added to the City plan.

C. R. CARVER COMPANY BUILDING
N. W. Cor. 20th and Clearfield Streets

The R. C. Carver Company, Inc., are manufacturers of Automatic Steel Die and Plate Presses. This machine is known in the Trade as the "Carver Automatic Steel Die and Copper Plate Press," and was the first of its kind to become a commercial success, although several attempts had been previously made prior to the manufacture of our machine.

This press automatically inks, wipes and takes the impression from steel dies and steel and copper plates, supplanting the hand press operation at an average increase of eight (8) times the production. The work is not only as good, but better and more uniform than by the hand process.

The machines are used by Stationers, Engravers and kindred trades.

The first press was built at 624-626 Filbert Street in 1896. This rather crude machine, by a late report, is still in operation. Five years elapsed before any plans for extensive manufacturing were arranged for. In October, 1901, space was rented on the third floor of the Moore & White Building, 15th and Lehigh Avenue, where the business was conducted until July, 1910, when we moved into our present plant on the Northwest Corner of 20th and Clearfield Streets.

The introduction of an Automatic Steel Die and Plate Press to the Trade was a slow and expensive undertaking, financed entirely by Mr. C. R. Carver.

It was not until the year 1904 that any degree of success seemed assured. In 1903, The C. R. Carver Company, Inc., was incorporated under the laws of the State of New Jersey, and in October, 1909, we incorporated under the laws of the State of Pennsylvania, with Mr. C. R. Carver as president, and practically the owner of the company, his death occurring in October, 1914.

Mr. Carver was for many years the sole manufacturer of the Brown & Carver Paper Cutting Machine, whose well-known reputation for building high-grade machinery has continued to be maintained by the company bearing his name. Witness to this fact is that, with the exception of twelve (12) presses destroyed by fire or lost track of, all those manufactured by the company are still in operation in some capacity.

The present officers of the C. R. Carver Company, Inc., are:

HARRY E. CARVER, President;
CHAS. H. CRAMER, Vice-President;
R. S. SHERMAN, Secretary and Treasurer;
H. S. HEWSTON, Selling Representative and Director, who is widely and popularly known to the Trade.

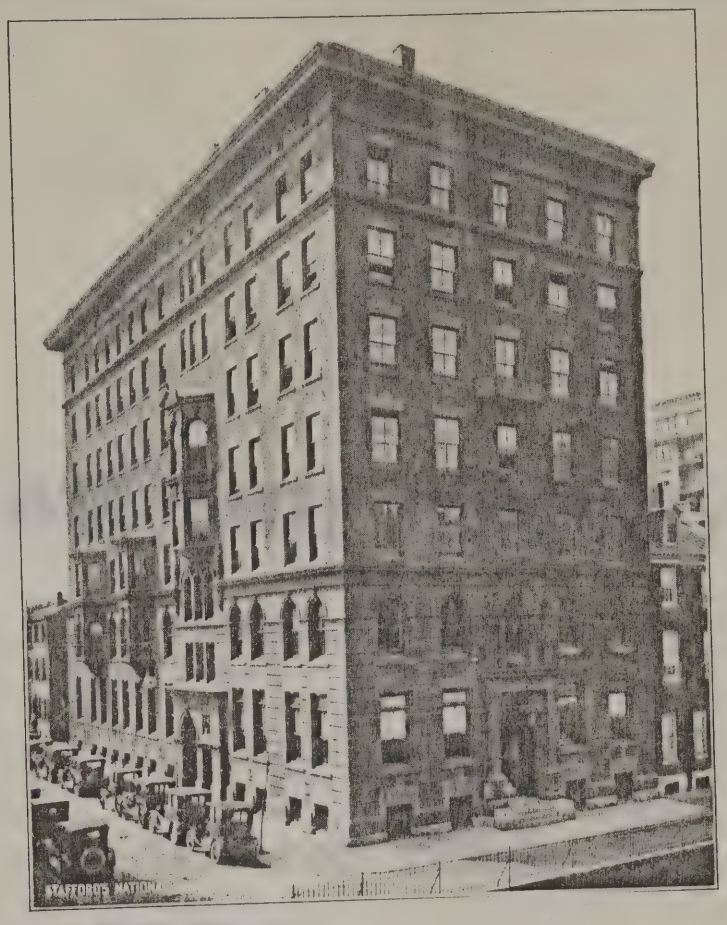
Business Admistration



Peirce School of Business Administration, one of the largest private schools in the United States, will in September enter its 67d year of continued success.

It has an annual enrolment of 3000 students; 35 States, 23 foreign countries, and nearly every university, college and preparatory school in the United States being represented in its attendance.

The Business Administration Course is of university grade, containing as many credit hours of instruction as the usual university course of four years, yet it may be completed in two years. It compares favorably with similar courses offered in various universities, and differs chiefly in stressing the practical subjects, rather than the purely cultural ones. It is designed to prepare young men of executive calibre for the responsibilities of business life.

The course in Accounting and Auditing prepares for the accounting profession and for the State examinations for the degree of C. P. A. In addition to general accounting subjects, this course gives a thorough training in cost accounting and managerial accounting, and the graduate is not only prepared for the accounting profession, but also for executive positions requiring a thorough grasp of accounting subjects, such as corporation treasurer, auditor, comptroller, cost accountant, etc.

The Executive Secretary Course covers shorthand, typewriting, secretarial duties and business administration subjects. Graduates of this course are fully qualified for promotion when opportunity offers. The first young woman ever made an officer of a financial institution in Philadelphia is a graduate of Peirce School.

The Stenographic-Secretary Course is a shorter secretarial course. It gives an employee thorough training in shorthand, typewriting and secretarial duties.

These secretarial courses, while particularly designed for young women, may also be taken by young men. In fact, secretarial positions frequently afford young men a quick method of advancement to executive positions. Many officers of large corporations began their busin ss careers as stenographers.

The Commercial Teacher-Training Course is accredited by the Department of Public Instruction of Pennsylvania, and graduates of the course are eligible to teach in the public schools of the State.

The regular courses are taught in both the day and evening schools, and, in the evening school, there are also special courses in Accounting and Real Estate Law and Conveyancing.

The school conducts an efficient Placement Bureau, and nearly all business houses in Philadelphia first apply to Peirce School when they want young men or young women for their places of business. Graduates of the school are assisted in securing positions, and students who desire to work their way through the school are assisted in securing employment for such of their time as they may be able to spare from their studies.

There is also a Loan Fund which assists students who may be overtaken by financial reverses while attending school.

The Alumni Association, membership in which is open to graduates, now numbers more than 1800 life members and active members in good standing.

The large fireproof building owned and exclusively occupied by the school, and designed particularly for school purposes, is one of the finest private school buildings in the country.

The Annual Commencement exercises of the school are of national interest by reason of the eminence of the speakers who have taken part in them. Ex-Presidents Harrison, Cleveland, Roosevelt and Taft have made important addresses on these occasions.

The school maintains a Cafeteria for the convenience of the students, where appetizing luncheons may be purchased at cost prices. Visitors are always interested in the spick-and-span appearance of the students' lunchroom.

Several hundred private families co-operate with the school in providing desirable living accommodations, at moderate rates, for young men and young women from out of town, and every effort is made to insure that each student shall have the proper cultural environment. Philadelphia is one of the most desirable cities in which to live while attending school, and parents who place their sons or daughters under the personal care of the school may rest assured that the health and general welfare of each student will be carefully looked after.

CASSATT & COMPANY

The banking house of Cassatt & Co. was estabished in 1872 and has had a steady and successful growth over a period of fifty-two years.

The house was established in November, 1872, at 105 and 107 South Third Street, Philadelphia, under the firm name of Lloyd, Cassatt & Co., by Robert S. Cassatt and his son, J. Gardner Cassatt, of Philadelphia, and William M. Lloyd, of Altoona, Pa.

Robert S. Cassatt, one of the founders of the firm, came to Philadelphia at the close of the Civil War from Allegheny, Pa., and was one of the first mayors of that city. He was the father of the late Alexander Johnston Cassatt, former President of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. J. Gardner Cassatt was admitted to membership of the Philadelphia Stock Exchange on November 9, 1872.

William M. Lloyd retired from the firm in 1873 and the business was continued by Robert S. Cassatt and J. Gardner Cassatt at the same address under the firm name of Cassatt & Co.

During 1879 the firm moved to 13 South Third Street, Philadelphia, and during the same year Evan R. Dick was admitted to the partnership, the name of the firm being changed upon his admission to Cassatt, Dick & Co.

Mr. Dick retired from the firm in 1881 and R. H. Townsend, Jr., was admitted to the firm, the name being changed to Cassatt, Townsend & Co. In 1884 the offices were removed to 305 Walnut Street and in 1886 to 105 South Fourth Street, Philadelphia.

During 1886 Mr. Townsend retired from the firm and the name was changed to Cassatt & Co., and has remained unchanged to the present time.

Robert S. Cassatt died in 1889 and the business was continued by his son, J. Gardner Cassatt, until November, 1893, when John Lloyd, President of the First National Bank of Altoona, Pa., and son of William M. Lloyd, one of the original founders of the firm, was admitted to membership.

During 1895 the offices were removed to 26 South Fifteenth Street, Philadelphia, and in 1902 to their present offices on the train floor of the Commercial Trust Building, Philadelphia.

On May 1, 1906, Robert K. Cassatt, grandson of Robert S. Cassatt, and son of Alexander J. Cassatt, and W. Plunket Stewart, son-in-law of Alexander J. Cassatt, were admitted to the firm. Mr. Stewart purchased the Philadelphia Stock Exchange seat of J. Gardner Cassatt and was admitted to membership of that Exchange and was also admitted to membership of the New York Stock Exchange on December 6, 1907.

J. Gardner Cassatt and John Lloyd retired from the firm on May 1, 1907.

Robert K. Cassatt and W. Plunket Stewart continued the firm until May 1, 1913, when T. Johnson Ward was admitted to membership.

Chauncey P. Colwell and W. W. Connelly were admitted to the firm on January 1, 1918, and R. Penn Smith, Jr., was admitted on July 1, 1919.

The present members of the firm are: Robert K. Cassatt, W. Plunket Stewart, T. Johnson Ward, Chauncey P. Colwell, W. W. Connelly and R. Penn Smith, Jr.

Cassatt & Co. are members of the New York Stock Exchange, the Philadelphia Stock Exchange and the Investment Bankers of America.

Branch offices have been established in the following cities: New York, Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Scranton, Wilkes-Barre, Harrisburg, Williamsport, York.

The Keystone Automobile Club was organized on October 16th, 1906, under the name of the Automobile Club of Delaware County. Its first President and founder was Joseph H. Weeks, of Rutledge.

The Club's Road Patrol is a great force for Highway Safety.

At the time of its organization, the Club had but 51 members. To-day its successor, the Keystone Automobile Club, has 18,000 members, and by reason of its tremendous activity is known to motorists throughout the United States.

Perhaps the most notable accomplishment of the Club was the securing the passage of the Sproul Act of 1911, the entire text of which was written by Mr. Weeks. It was this act that ex-Governor Sproul, who sponsored it in the Senate, referred to later in his speech when he said, "The real father of good roads in this State is Joseph H. Weeks, the late President of the Keystone Automobile Club."

Among other outstanding activities of the Club were two campaigns for Bond Issues for road purposes—the first in 1918 and the second in 1923, which resulted in creation and continuation of the present primary system of State Highways, which was provided for under the Sproul Act.

Joseph H. Weeks died in November of 1919 and his son, J. Borton Weeks, took up the work of the Club where his father left off. The younger Mr. Weeks started an aggressive policy that has resulted in more than quadrupling the membership of the Club and the inauguration of the policy of expansion, which is still continuing.

Among the more recent of the Club's public activities may be mentioned the "Legal Lights" campaign, which resulted in the voluntary compliance with the headlight regulations by more than 60% of the motorists in Phila. and vicinity.

Its campaign against crooked, fining Squires has made it known and feared throughout the East.

While the Club is well known for its public activities perhaps its greatest value is to the individual member in the service which it renders him. Among the Departments of the Club which give valuable advice and service to each member are the Legal Department, the Emergency Road Service Department and the Touring Bureau.

The Club publishes its own touring guide, "Eastern Tours," and also has a monthly magazine, "Keystone Motorist," which is sent to every member. Three large maps are also given to each member upon joining the Club.

The headquarters of the Keystone Automobile Club are in the Hotel Walton, Broad and Locust Streets, Philadelphia. The entrance fee is $12.00, including the first year's dues and emblem. The annual dues are $8.00.
